Within the last two months thousands of bottles of the Universal Cough Mixture have been sold in the State of Maine alone, and everywhere its extraordinary power in relieving and curing diseases of the Throat, Lungs, is gratefully acknowledged, and enquiry in cases of Consumption, be it specially advised, will always elicit the information that the above remedy excites a easy expectoration, and by removing the cause of the cough, it frequently enables the sufferers to enjoy natural and refreshing sleep, which for weeks has been entirely denied them.
Sold in full bottles, 25 cents each bottles, each containing a large quantity of four times, 75 cents each.
Extract of a letter from Samuel Adams, Esq of Kennebunk Maine
KENNEBUNK, FEBRUARY 17th, 1855.
Sir—The bottle of Cough Mixture which I bought of you at Topsham last fall has been effected with a cough for two years—that is entirely removed it.
From Rev Lesse Hayes, Lewiston Falls
Bro Clarke—Every bottle of your Universal Cough Mixture which I bought of me has answered the most sanguine expectations I have heard from all parts of the country I have labelled with testimonials of its virtues and shall continue to do so. I have had a bad cough and shortness of breath for some months, and after using one bottle of your Mixture I found myself relieved, and before the second bottle, and before the third I was entirely well. I had taken one bottle of Wistar's Balsam, but found no benefit from it. I have had the Asthma for many years, and have used various medicines but found no benefit from any of them

A "Defence" from Mr. W[eaver]

The late Marshal of this city, [who] is here, is now at Augusta, his [place] of Defence," in the Portland Journal and Courier—occupying nine full columns of the paper—in which he complains that he was [removed] by the City Council without any [trial], (although he was before the committee and made his statements at length)—that he had no opportunity of cross-examining witnesses—that he was condemned in his absence, &c. (He went off, by the way, a few hours before the time when he knew it [was] to be before the Council.) His review of the testimony in the McCann case, and [to show] there was nothing in that to condemn him in the fact of his reserving portions of seized liquors out of those ordered to be destroyed. What was kept, he asserts was [necessary] to make good deficiencies in liquors ordered to be restored. He makes many other statements against the police officers, and also charges the city government, and many others who were once his friends, with duplicity and misrepresentation, with blaming him without cause, and neglecting to defend him against his enemies. He also makes her and entirely gratuitous charges against temperance men of the city.

Mr. Weaver, in a private note, requests us to re-publish his defence, at length. We certainly do not conceive that he has any claim upon us to do so. During the time when he was most fiercely assailed by the opposition papers of the city, we endeavored faithfully to defend him to the best of our ability, because we believed him to be an honest and truthful man, and knew him to be an energetic officer. Thus believing, we placed no confidence in any of the numberless charges against him, many of which we knew to be false,—but whenever we could obtain a denial from him of specific allegations, we made his denials public. We did this in all honesty, and with the feeling that the [action] ought to be sustained by the temperance community. But when we found (as we did) not long before his removal from office, that we could not depend upon the statements which he made to us when we applied for information with which to rebut the charges of the opposition, we could no longer feel safe in defending him. We were obliged to resort to silence" which he now charges upon us as evidence of a pusillanimous desertion of his cause. It was not pusillanimity at all which caused that silence—nor yet any intention of "backing out" from the cause of temperance or that of prohibition, as he would now have the people believe was the case with us and with the Maine Law men of this city—but simply a conviction that neither [we] nor any one else could do him any good, and that any efforts towards his temperance friends generally would only injure the cause. Under he pursued an open and candid course. these circumstances we think he was justified in upon us to publish his defence, or to become his organ, or to have any controversy whatever.

In regard to the complaints and charges which he now makes against the City Government, and against the temperance men of Bangor, we have only to reply that the [mass] of the cause here are generally satisfied, [that] of the evidence in the particular matters which were investigated by the City Council, and other things—that the government acted [wisely] in removing him from office. That [removal] was not made, as he asserts, from the [pressure] brought to bear by his enemies—[with] a sense of painful duty. The necessity of removal brought hardly less reproach upon those who had been his friends and who were the true friends of temperance, than it did upon himself. It is not, therefore, to be [supposed] that any mere clamor of his enemies or the opponents of the temperance cause led them to remove him without what they deemed an imperative reason.

One portion of Mr. W[eaver's] [letter] devoted to a special [answer] to our therefore copy [the] for missing [article].

The [communication] of the Mayor to the City Council and contained an editorial entitled "[Charges] against THE MARSHAL." Although other things in the article contains the following [paragraph] known there have been charges against the City Marshal relative to property in the surrender of [certain] seized liquors." No charges [have] have since been preferred against [him], while the rumors in the streets [have] ed in that light. In the same [article] that the houses of the members of department had been searched in [search] of packages of liquors being [secreted] Watch House, but he adds "we [believe] there is no good ground of [complaint] the deputies or subordinate officers [employed], before any investigation [was] tempted, that the Marshal was [guilty] ty, and all others (some twelve in [number]) were innocent. Instead of the case, it is well known that one [package] missing from the cell, about which a statement had been raised, was found in the houses searched, partly filled with [liquor]. Notwithstanding all this, the officer having it, did not let [anyone] find it. The papers took no notice [of it], and the man is retained in office. had been found in my house, it been said, "now we know where has gone." I do not mention [this] him, for I regard him as the [most] and high minded of any connected [with] lice of Bangor.

The Mayor called out the editor and Mercury, and spoke to them [of] priety and injustice of making [charges] at that stage of the proceedings was effected. I note the report [was] seconded and cowardly by the basked up by the editors, [whose] would, against me, was "[unknown]" brought forth in impurity." The the Mayor, of the Whig and published in nearly all the papers. The public mind had become prepared to condemn me before [I] without notice, Mayor and the Whig the time he [was] prompted you [to] mence they [made] [charges]

Report of the State Prison—Suggestions for the Reformation of Convicts.

We are indebted to William Cutter, Esq. for a copy of the Annual Reports of the Warden and Inspectors of the Maine State Prison.

The Warden, (Mr. Thomas W. Hix) gives a clear statement of the affairs of the prison.

It appears that the additional story to the wheelwrights' shop, for which $3000 was appropriated, has been completed — making a pleasant and airy room of 70 feet by 30, occupied by wheelwrights, tailors, shoemakers and basket makers—and also a room 30 feet square for carriage trimming and painting.

A new stable and engine house are needed, which would cost about $2300. Also another guard house.

The expenses of the Prison have exceeded the income by $1,642, and there are old debts against the Prison amounting to $500. The debts due the Prison (of about $5,000) are said to be nearly worthless.

The practice of solitary confinement, as a punishment for misdemeanors, is deprecated by the Warden as injurious to the health of the convict. A substitute is suggested, (and has been practised) of chaining the offender to the outside of his cell, in such a way that he may have more or less liberty of motion as he shall continue refractory or otherwise.

The number of convicts Dec. 31, 1855 was 89—received during the year 29—discharged 24, pardoned 8.

The whole number received since 1824, is 1150—discharged 828—pardoned 192—died 28—escaped 8—removed to Insane Hospital 4.

Of the 89 now in Prison, 51 were committed for larceny, 2 for arson, 4 for burglary, 3 for murder, 1 for murder in the second degree, 3 for manslaughter, 3 for rape, 6 for adultery, 4 for assault with intent to ravish, 2 for assault to kill, 3 for shopbreaking, 1 for robbing the mail, 1 for passing counterfeit money, 1 for malicious burning.

69 are natives of the United States, 10 of Ireland, 5 of England, 6 of Nova Scotia. 85 are white males, 3 white females, 1 negro, (male.)

The most interesting portion of the [report] of the Inspectors (Messrs. Chas. [Stetson] and Samuel C. Fessenden), and of [which] does credit to their humanity, and [appreciation] of the true interests of [the State] and of the community,—is the [portion] which we copy with pleasure [as follows]:

While the State requires the punishment good of criminal, the State [requires] greater good is to be [effected] by his reformation. We think it evident, from what about argument that a wise plan, [with] more extensive, continuous and persistent [efforts] might be devised. [Our] plan would be, in its outline, [something] whatever follows. An officer, whose [duty] shall be to devote himself entirely to the great and good work, beginning with the convict the day he enters prison, nor leaving him [while] there is proper evidence that he has been and may be still more benefitted, until he is started in the world, at the expiration of his sentence, with some fair chance for a virtuous, industrious, and successful life. Let this officer [endeavor] to acquaint himself thoroughly with the character and history of each prisoner, and let the nature of his efforts for the convict's reformation, as to what they shall be and how far they shall be carried, be determined by facts and results, as they are developed from time to time. For example, A. B., age nineteen, is found to be in prison on his first commitment; sentence one year. On diligent enquiry, the account that he gives of himself is found to be true. A neglected, ignorant boy; has been intemperate man; the son early thrown upon the world to shift for himself, and led into the paths of the destroyer, soon [to be] [found] [in the] [history] [of] [his] [crime] [and] [sentence] [one year]. [On] [the] [other] [hand] [he] [is] [found] [to] [be] [a] [man] [of] [mature] [years] [and] [character] [who] [has] [been] [in] [prison] [before] [and] [who] [is] [found] [to] [be] [a] [hardened] [villain]. [Now] [the] [treatment] [which] [is] [proper] [for] [the] [first] [case] [would] [be] [entirely] [unsuitable] [for] [the] [second]. [The] [first] [is] [probably] [the] [victim] [of] [circumstances] [over] [which] [he] [had] [no] [control]; [the] [second] [is] [probably] [the] [author] [of] [his] [own] [misfortunes]. [The] [first] [is] [probably] [a] [subject] [for] [reformation]; [the] [second] [is] [probably] [incorrigible]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [a] [short] [imprisonment]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [kind] [treatment]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [instruction]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [employment]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [a] [short] [imprisonment]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [kind] [treatment]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [instruction]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it]. [The] [first] [will] [probably] [be] [benefitted] [by] [employment]; [the] [second] [will] [probably] [be] [injured] [by] [it].

[door of the] [prison] [unlocked] [and] [he] [passed] [out]. [We] [could] [add] [followed] [by] [our] [respects], [but] [I] [do] [say] [they] [committed] [a] [much] [to] [my] [prejudices].

[In reply] to the first [complaint], we simply [say] that Mr. Weaver misunderstood our meaning. We did not intend to say that charges [had] been formally preferred against the Marshal to the authorities—but that they were [generally] notoriously made. We admit that [we] [had] the proper phraseology—but the [charges] were made in such a way, nevertheless, that the Mayor and the Council felt bound to [take] notice of them.

As to the second count, we can only say that [all] our information at the time from what [we] supposed good authority, and believed what [was] told,—that no liquor was found in the [possession] of the other members of the police [department]. We think this matter was after[wards] right in the report of the Investigating [Committee]. If not, we now freely give [him] the benefit which may be [derived] from his own statement.

[As to] how we now feel about the whole matter, we [still] think that justice requires us to make [room] for Mr. Weaver's nine columns of "defence"—a large portion of which consists of [trifling] accusations against his former friends, having nothing to do with any disproof of charges against himself. We have hitherto treated him with forbearance, and desire to do so in future, if he will permit us again to keep "silence."

From the State of Maine.

Reminiscences of the Last Days of Commodore Morris and the Battle of Castine.

Commodore Morris, who died in Washington on the 27th inst., has already announced in our paper, of all but one of the officers of the American Navy. His name is familiar more especially in the eastern part of Maine, from his participation in the war on the Penobscot, in 1814. Some years ago we had the good fortune, from his own lips, to obtain an account of that famous expedition.

The United States corvette, Adams, of 24 guns, commanded by Capt. Charles Morris, left Savannah in May, 1814 on a cruise, and after making several captures, appeared at the Penobscot in August and, entering the Bay in thick weather, struck on a rock, seriously injuring her, while several of the crew were disabled from the effects of the scurvy. She reached Hampden with great difficulty, where she was to undergo repairs.

A British fleet, under command of Rear Admiral Griffith, sailed from Halifax on the 26th of August, 1814, consisting of the Bulwark, Dragon and Spencer of 74 guns each; frigates Bacchante and Tenedos, the sloop Sylph, the Brig Peruvian and 10 transports, having on board between 3 and 4000 men, commanded by Major Gen. Gosselin, all under the immediate command of Lieut.-Gen. Sir John Sherbrooke, Lieut. Governor of Nova Scotia.

The British Commander designed to take possession of Machias, but failing in this with a brig he received information of the arrival of the corvette Adams in the Penobscot, and proceeded with all possible despatch thither, and reached Castine on the morning of Sept. 1, 1814. The small fort was held by Lieut. Lewis with about 40 men, who refused to surrender, but opened their fire with four 24-pounders upon such of the fleet as came within reach of their guns. On the landing of the British troops at another point, Lieut. Lewis blew up the fort and with his men in boats, taking two field pieces with him. Castine was at once occupied by the British in force, and an expedition sent in pursuit of the Adams.

The corvette had at this time been drawn up as far as Crosby's wharf, Hampden, where she had been dismantled. As soon as information of the arrival of the British at Castine reached Bangor, Gen. Blake, Commander, called out the militia of that region. Capt. Morris was soon after joined by Lieut. Lewis and his soldiers. On consulting these parties determined to make a stand at Hampden. The guns of the Adams were taken out, part of them placed in battery on the wharf, and others upon an eminence some fifty rods distant, commanding the river, while a portion were brought up into the road, and placed in ambush under the command of Gen. Blake's militia, amounting in all to about 600 men. These were added to 400 seamen and marines, and 30 regulars under command of Lieut. Lewis. The militia were without suitable arms, and never seen service. Capt. Morris doubted their ability to stand fire, or the charge of 700 regulars, but not so seasoned in the Peninsular war. He therefore made his arrangements to destroy the Adams in case the militia gave way.

At daybreak on the evening of September 3, Col. Henry John, of the 60th, advanced with 700 men to the attack of Gen. Blake's position. As they began to ascend the ridge, a discharge of one of the 8 pounders of the Adams ploughed their ranks, killing one man and wounding eight others, including one officer.

The British closed their ranks without halting, and rushed upon the ridge in double quick time, at the charge of the bayonet, when the militia broke and fled in confusion. Gen. Blake was a brave man, without discretion, and he ordered his men to "give 'em Bunker Hill fashion," and not to fire till they could see the whites of their eyes. Had the militia been allowed to discharge their pieces, and get warmed up in the heat and smoke of the battle, they might have made the victory of that day a dear one to the British, though no substantial good would have come of it, from the overwhelming reserve of the enemy.

Lieut. Wadsworth, 2d officer of the Adams, was in command of the battery on the eminence, and Capt. Morris of that upon the wharf. A thick fog almost obscured the view of each, and both Wadsworth and Morris' command narrowly escaped being made prisoners. Finding all chance of maintaining their position hopeless, on account of the retreat of the militia, they spiked their guns, and set fire to the ship, that blew up with a tremendous explosion, and then forded the Sowadabecook in the face of the enemy, who had already gained the only bridge across the river, and held the eminence from which Lieut. Wadsworth had just returned.

The British followed the fugitives to Bangor, where terror and consternation prevailed—filled with marines, their transport barges keeping pace with the advance of the troops. Capt. Morris and his party were received at Bangor with all the kindness possible under the circumstances, but they barely had time to snatch a hasty bite, before starting for the Kennebec, through the woods in the direction of what is now the town of Canaan. The good people of Bangor rendered them such sustenance as they could command, and the story is of a married lady, then in the bloom of youth, health and beauty, the latter of which she still retains, who poured out tea for Capt. Morris, cooled it for him with her own breath, till the enemy's bugles announced that the last moment for escape had arrived. In answer to our inquiry, the old Commodore denied the truth of the cooling of the tea, but expressed his sense of obligation for their unbounded kindness and attention in all other respects.

Capt. Morris was destitute of money, and his men were in the rudest sailor garb.—They all suffered incredible hardships before they reached the settlement on the Kennebec, and could get nothing but the coarsest fare till they reached Waterville, in what is now the town of Canaan they first came to a farm house, and sought to buy, on the credit of an order on Washington, whatever articles of food the owner possessed, but the poor man feared to trust them. They pushed on to a second one, where the owner slaughtered at once all his stock of pigs and oxen, and gave them for sustenance any thing that he could command, without inquiring as to compensation or whether they were entitled to credit. Keeping by the river, they finally reached Waterville, where they found means of conveyance to Portland, where they got clothing and money, and reported themselves at the Charlestown Navy Yard.

We understand that one of Capt. Morris' crew was James Dennison, formerly well known in this city as a Hack driver, who died some dozen years ago, and who used to regale his younger auditors by narrating the events of his expedition.

Commodore Morris never visited Bangor

Holloway's Pills possess most astonishing power in the Cure of General debility. Copy of Henry Antoine, of Houston, Chickasaw, Mississippi, to Professor Holloway:—Sir—I suffered for years from weak nerves and General debility, and was brought to death's door by the same. I was told, and believed, that there was no hope of my recovery. I resolved to give your Pills a trial. After using about five weeks, my health was completely restored, and at the expiration of two months every disorder disappeared."

Coughs and Colds. At this season of the year, when coughs and colds are so prevalent, a reliable remedy in such cases is important to all the afflicted. Of Dr. Stone's medicine, which will be found advertised in our paper, the Montreal Pilot says:

The astonishing demand for G. W. Stone's Cough Medicine and its complete success in curing affections of the throat and lungs, fully prove that we were justified in recommending it to our readers on its introduction to the public; and we can safely assert that no remedy has ever become more deservedly popular in the same space of time.—[Lowell News.

It is the old and true maxim that an ounce of preventive is worth a pound of cure, will be fully realized by those who make use of G. W. Stone's Liquid Cathartic and Blood Physic, as it cleanses the blood from all impurity, the stomach from bile, produces a healthy action of the liver, and perfectly regulates the bowels; it also relieves all local pains, prevents and cures dysentery, bilious cholera morbus, or cholera, strengthens the whole system, and is perfectly agreeable to the taste.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.

House. Mr Letcher offered a resolution that Messrs Banks, Orr and Fuller be appointed to confer together and report to-morrow morning the name of some member on whom they or a majority of them shall agree who shall be Speaker. He said that various attempts had been made proving it impossible to elect a Speaker by a direct vote. If his expedient to secure a result should succeed it would carry joy throughout the country, and show the people heaven's first law Order reigns in Washington Tabled by 28 majority.

Mr Lindley offered a resolution declaring Mr. Porter of Missouri Speaker He said Mr. Porter was unobjectionable to all parties being neither a K N. or a Democrat, nor the least tainted with republicanism, but an old fashioned whig, which every body seemed to admire now that it was dead. Laughter Tabled by 76 majority.

Mr Ball submitted a resolution declaring Mr Banks Speaker, negatived by 102 against 115

Mr Cobb, after a speech, convening the House with laughter offered a resolution, declaring Mr Aiken of S C., Speaker. After the roll had been called Mr Whitney said he had been informed that his vote would effect an election As he understood Mr Aiken was not a member of the administration party he would change from nay to the affirmative.

Deafening applause in the galleries and on the floor mingled with impatient cries to declare the vote Amidst breathless anxiety the Clerk announced—Yeas 103, Nays 110!

This result, so unexpected, was received with violent outbursts of laughter, intermingled with hisses and applause!

Adjourned

On the resolution declaring Mr Banks Speaker Messrs Dunn, Moore, Harrison and Haven voted as heretofore against him, on the resolution declaring Mr Aiken Speaker there was a partial union of Democrats and Americans—Messrs Barclay and Hickman, democrats and Mr Culley, American, voted in the negative and Messrs Williams and Wheeler in the affirmative

Mr Aiken thus received one vote on the direct question more than Mr Banks, though a larger number voted to the Banks resolution than when the proposition to choose Mr Aiken was before the House The friends of Mr A congratulate themselves that he might win by the adoption of the plurality resolution.

Through Tickets (including transit of the Isthmus) via Panama R. R.

By order of the Postmaster General, the United States Mail Steamers will leave Aspinwall for New York direct on the 5th and 20th of each month.

Passengers are landed at the Railroad Depot, Aspinwall, and conveyed across to the Pacific Steamers without any extra expense. This is the only line giving entire Through Tickets, including meals, on the Isthmus.

Transit made in four hours, entirely by daylight, thus avoiding the great exposure by night to open boats, to fever and ague, and 240 miles of dangerous lake and river navigation over rocks and shoals.

Arrangements have now been completed so that the regular U. S. Pacific Mail Steamer will leave Panama for San Francisco immediately on arrival of the Atlantic Mails, and passengers, thus securing passengers by this Mail Line a short and passage, without any detention, on the Isthmus.

☞ Tickets must be signed by one of the Company's Agents before they will be recognized by the Agent at Panama, and tickets thus signed can be obtained of the duly authorized Agent for the Atlantic and Pacific Mail Steamship Companies, in this city. C. L. BARTLETT, Agent,

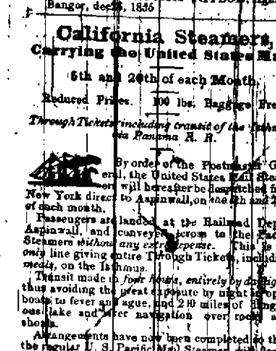
ARNOLD'S COMBINED.



FOOT-STOVE, LANTERN,

AND

NURSE-LAMP.

ALBERT NOYES having purchased the exclusive right for manufacturing and vending, in Penobscot county, the above valuable invention, is now prepared to offer them to the public.

As a FOOT STOVE, it changed an excellent purpose, as it can be sufficiently heated in less than one minute to warm and dry the feet in the coldest winter weather, and will be found to be an indispensable article in traveling.

As an oil, oil-lamp, or hand-lamp, the flame of which is protected from every external motion.

As a LANTERN, it answers all the usual purposes, and is less likely to be over set, or get topheavy, and can be used as a house lamp with equal advantage.

As a NURSE LAMP, and in cases of sickness, it is of great advantage in keeping drinks or medicines warm—cooking the light desired, and for watching in small quantities. For baking tea, &c., it will be found very convenient, as a quart of water can be boiled in fifteen minutes, and is hot from heat in the same length of time.

In fact, the cause to purposes to which this neat apparatus can be put may be easily conceived by every one. No particular description is required, as no person unacquainted can long remain so. To say any think more respecting its adaptability to a hundred purposes would just be telling what our readers can all see at once for themselves.
